'No' Vote On Village Best For Chouteau Residents At This Time

Duted. Residents At This Time

The Press-Record has provided detailed background information for those who are to decide Monday, Feb. 26, whether the trillage of housements best for residents of the trillage of housements best for residents of the 1,91-square-mile area, we believe a "No" vote would be the wisest choice.

A major drawback is the limited assessment base; each penny of the property tax rate would produce only about $300 in yearly income for the village. Despite some supplemental revenue, the bulk of whatever funds are spent would come from those who reside and own property within the designated boundaries.

Along with the added cost of a new gov-

Along with the added cost of a new governmental system, other economic problems could arise. Major territorial expansion is planned by the incorporators, further boosting village costs and responsibilities. There is a real prospect that industrial development and other new construction might be discouraged by the accompanying loss of county zoning.

new construction might be discouraged by the accompanying loss of county zoning.

Incorporators have said they would like to see the village try to detach itself from the Mitchell water district, and have discussed a village sever plan that would compete with the water district's current sewer proposal. Some opponents fear a move by the village to join the adjacent East Side Levee and Sanitary District. As a result of such developments, sewer planning and water financing in the Mitchell area could be complicated and leopardized and the governmental structure further balkanised. Past and present activities of some of the incorporation backers have caused widespread concern among residents, who are aware of the sweeping authority that would be vested governing officials. They rightly conclude that such boldness at this early oppression of unwater worn in.
